

AMONG THE BALL PLAYERS.

EASTERN CLUBS HAVE SHOWN UP WELL IN THE WEST.

Their First Week's Record Is Twenty-two Victories. Of the Thirteen Games Played Still "Boozing" for the New Yorks—Records at the Local Players.

Twenty-two victories out of thirty-six games played was the record of the Eastern clubs in the first week's struggle against the Western teams. If this record is taken as a criterion the East will easily carry off the honors on Western soil, as neither St. Louis nor Louisville will be able to check the visiting teams.

The local cranks, who never say die, are now looking for a spurt on the part of the New York team. The "rooters" believe that the few late victories may possibly cause the men to brace up. During this week the New Yorks will play at Pittsburgh and Cleveland. Doheny pitched in splendid style in both games which he won last week, but whether he will be able to hold the heavy hitters that will be opposed to him from now on is hard to say. Peacock has shown his performance in last Friday's game to represent his team well. Peacock is a good pitcher, having five hits. Meekin is the other pitcher who will take him in the box, and then there is the new man Campfield, who may pitch against the Pittsburghs this afternoon. Should the New Yorks win three games this week the "rooters" will not grumble.

The Brooklyn's work to date has not been up to expectations. They hit the ball hard enough to win an ordinary game, but their pitchers seem to be an easy mark for the opposing batters. Foutz's men play at Louisville to-morrow, and at Cincinnati on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday. The Baltimoreans and Philadelphians each won five games last week. The champions will next meet the St. Louis and Chicago teams at the Queen City. The Washingtons and Louisvilles, with Mercer in the box, the Washingtons have shown up strong, but when the long-haired youth is not sending them home, the Louisvilles are not far behind. They seem to play loosely. To-day and to-morrow the Washingtons play at Cincinnati, and at St. Louis on Wednesday. The Louisvilles are making a bit of bid for the lead. They will locate at Chicago and Pittsburgh during the week.

The records of the New York and Brooklyn players up to date follow:
